

MM21 DHC Announces New Organizational Structure

MM21 DHC has recently carried out a reorganization and will transition to a new organizational structure in order to respond to future changes in the business environment and further strengthen its organization.

1. Overview of New Organizational Structure

The names of the departments in the new organization and a summary of the changes are as follows.

(1) Customer Service Department

The integration of the Sales & Marketing Department and the Customer Group of the Plant Management Department has created a structure that will facilitate one-stop service and further improve customer service.

(2) Engineering Department

The name has been changed from the Development Planning Department. The renamed department will be constructing a new plant (the No. 3 plant) and considering the introduction of new technology.

(3) Plant Management Department

The Operation Team has been reorganized into the Operation Center, and the personnel and educational structures will be strengthened.

(4) Corporate Management Department

The Corporate Management Department will be responsible for management planning, human resources management, general administration, accounting and facility management. It will work to strengthen company-wide internal control, increase resilience, and improve employee engagement.

2. Date of changes

Effective April 1, 2022